
Foggy London Times

Thursday 8 December, 1881. £0.03. Weather forecast: misty.

page 1

Peeping Tom revisits victim, scared off by maid Fur-coated demon haunts West End, police impotent to act?

Lorem ipsum dolor sit amet, consectetur adipiscing elit. Ut ultricies dui nunc lacus. Proin imperdiet. Suspendisse nulla nisi, consequat eu, adipiscing vel, elementum et, nulla. Duis facilisis. Cras eu leo venenatis enim venenatis scelerisque. Ut lobortis, quam in varius tincidunt, pede quam dictum nunc, ut laoreet justo nunc ac ipsum. Integer porttitor justo sed dui. In vulputate. Nunc vehicula sem ac augue. Nulla a metus id arcu facilisis egetas. Proin non odio sed ligula imperdiet laeina. Fusce scelerisque nonummy felis. Praesent vitae lacus. Nullam consectetur. Etiam tincidunt, quam sit amet commodo volutpat, mauris turpis ornare odio, vel tempus lorem nisi ut sem. Integer rutrum, sapien a tincidunt cursus, sapien ipsum ullamcorper nulla, et interdum sapien est et risus. In congue blandit eros. Lorem ipsum dolor sit amet, consectetur adipiscing elit.

Foggy London Times

Thursday 15 December, 1881. £0.03. Weather forecast: limited field of vision due to low-hanging clouds.

page 3

Scotland Yard cracks Peeping Tom case Two brothers arrested

After having remained quiet on the issue for several days, Inspector Effington of Scotland Yard finally came forward to reveal that the Peeping Tom case has been successfully closed with the apprehension of the Ravenhold brothers. The nightly terror which struck fear into the hearts of many West Enders has been eradicated. The brothers used an Arabian solution which gave their eyes the horrifying yellow color. Nunc vehicula sem ac augue. Nulla a metus id arcu facilisis egetas. Proin non odio sed ligula imperdiet laeina. Fusce scelerisque nonummy felis. Praesent vitae lacus. Nullam.

Metro tunnels dry Work continues

Etiam tincidunt, quam sit amet commodo volutpat, mauris turpis ornare odio, vel tempus lorem nisi ut sem. Integer rutrum, sapien a tincidunt cursus, sapien ipsum ullamcorper nulla, et interdum sapien est et risus. In congue blandit eros. Lorem ipsum dolor sit amet, consectetur adipiscing elit.